The Vanderbilt University School of Medicine
Department of Radiology and Radiological Sciences

Presents

“Screening for Breast Cancer: Making Sense of Recent Controversies”

By

Mark A. Helvie, M.D., F.A.C.R.

Professor of Radiology
Director, Division of Breast Imaging
Department of Radiology
University of Michigan Health System

Monday
October 14, 2013
12:00 p.m. – 1:00 p.m.

202 Light Hall
Vanderbilt University Medical Center

This grand round is designed for faculty, residents, staff and medical students. Objectives of this presentation: 1. Provide information regarding benefits, limitations, harms of mammographic screening. 2. Review life years gained and number need to screen. 3. High risk screening recommendation.

Sponsored by Vanderbilt School of Medicine, Department of Radiology and Radiological Sciences.

Vanderbilt University School of Medicine is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education to provide continuing medical education for physicians. Vanderbilt University School of Medicine designates this live activity for a maximum of 1 AMA PRA Category 1 Credit(s)™. Physicians should claim only the credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity. Jeff L. Creasy, M.D., course director, has no financial relationships related to the content of this activity to disclose. Mark A. Helvie, M.D., F.A.C.R., presenter, has the following relationships to disclose: GE Health Care (Tomosynthesis). Vanderbilt CME has determined that there is no conflict of interest.

This educational activity received no commercial support.