Purpose/Target Audience

GI-related disorders are prevalent and vary in terms of age group and type. This course is intended to help physicians practicing in Gastroenterology, Internal Medicine, Primary Care and Surgery become familiar with the most up to date treatments for a broad spectrum of digestive disease topics. The faculty hope to challenge participants on common and uncommon endoscopic findings.

Objectives

After participating in this CME activity, the attendees should be able to describe and discuss:

- The latest development in the field of Gastroenterology
- Controversies in different fields and how to best manage these patients
- Current management strategies for GI disorders including hepatitis B, GERD, Colon cancer and IBD

Location
